Welcome from the UTTC President

Hau' Mitakuyapi ka Mikodapi (hello my friends and relatives):

Dr. Leander R. McDonald

On behalf of the Board of Directors, Staff, Faculty, and Students, welcome to the United Tribes Technical College (UTTC) campus and the 54th Anniversary of the UTTC International Powwow! The theme for the UTTC Events Week is entitled Celebrating Leaders and Champions in recognition of those individuals who have led and championed sovereignty and culture as a foundation for the advancement of our Nations! Indigenous people have experienced significant challenges over these past generations; however, these challenges have been met with more recent efforts to revitalize our language, which holds our culture and spirituality and the answers to our issues within this contemporary society.

UTTC hosts thousands of United States, Canadian, and international visitors, who travel to Bismarck, ND specifically to attend the UTTC International Powwow to learn about our culture, shop for arts and crafts, and eat some of the great foods provided by our vendors. We appreciate all of our friends and relatives who are here to participate and shared your good songs and dancing styles from across Indian Country! We are very appreciative of South Fox Ranch for supporting the singing contest this year, previous years, and for the upcoming years, as well as support for the dance contests and specials that they have provided over the years!

We are also thankful to you, the surrounding communities, gathered Nations, and all our sponsors, for supporting Events Week and the UTTC International Powwow through your presence and participation! Any profit generated from the events held throughout the course of this week are given out in student scholarships or contributed to an endowment to ensure this scholarship is available for future students in perpetuity. We hope you will or had the opportunity to visit other events such as the UTTC Golf Tournament, Legends Softball Tournament, Thunderbird Run, Youth Basketball Tournament, and Tribal Leaders Summit throughout this week!

Thank you once again to the five governing Tribal Nations of North Dakota as well as our tribal, regional, national, and the local Bismarck-Mandan sponsors for your support! Also, a big shout out to the UTTC International Powwow Committee, all Events Week Committees, and UTTC's workforce, that have contributed their time and effort to make the UTTC Events Week a success!

Last, but not least in any way, we want to thank the great drum groups and dancers for bringing your beautiful songs and dance styles to honor our Celebration with your presence! Blessings to all for a safe weekend and prayers for safe travel as you make your way home to the four directions.

Hecetu yedo (So be it).

Nina Wopida Iciciyapido (Thank you to all)!

Featured Artist: Rusty Gillette

Rusty Gillette is Arikara and Hidatsa from the Fort Berthold Reservation in North Dakota. He is the son of Vince and Connie Gillette and the grandson of Russell Gillette. He is a member of the Dead Grass Society in White Shield, ND.

Rusty earned his bachelor's degree in Communications with a Concentration in Public Relations from the University of Mary in Bismarck, ND. Rusty has been a graphic artist for over 25 years. He has won awards in various categories such as logo design, CD cover, poster and 3 dimensional art.

Gillette's design is the chosen submission for this year's 54th Annual United Tribes Technical College artwork.

The logo artwork was designed with the following thoughts. The Tipi represents our homes and our prayers. The fires that burn bright within our homes are where our Leaders and Champions come from. A white buffalo represents the Powwow and Tribal Leaders Summit. They are surrounded by a backbone design which shows strength for our future generations to come.

"I would like to thank the United Tribes Powwow Committee for asking me to be this year's artist. Growing up in the Bismarck community and being a part of the United Tribes community made this a fun and powerful project."

The powwow trail is a never ending trail of friendships, love, and laughter. I travel anywhere to help out whenever I'm needed.

To all the dancers, singers and spectators; "enjoy yourself and love what you hear and see".

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the committee for inviting me to their celebration.

POWWOW AT-A-GLANCE

Contest Powwow Dances

The United Tribes Technical College International Powwow is held every second weekend in September. This is a contest powwow, where dancers and singers compete for prize money. Judges selected by the powwow committee will evaluate a dancer's performance based on knowledge and skill of their category; keeping time with the drum; and regalia. The UTTC International Powwow is one of the last large outdoor events on the northern Great Plains powwow circuit. For that reason, this annual event is known as the Home of the Champions. Our 2018 theme is: Leadership Educating the Next Generation.

What is a powwow?

The word powwow, is a noun an Eastern Algonquian language used to describe a gathering of Native people; however, in Indian Country, the event is defined as a cultural celebration that features group singing and dancing by men, women and children. Cultural traditions such as values and spirituality are passed from generation to generation during these social gatherings. Skilled Native American artisans travel across the country to attend various powwows to display and sell their hand-made goods. The powwow is a welcome opportunity to visit with friends and relatives, trade or sell Native arts and crafts, and enjoy great traditional and contemporary foods.

Arena Director

The Arena director is responsible for ensuring that everything in the powwow arena runs smoothly, including lining up Grand Entry, setting up dance categories, and keeping the dancers and singers informed throughout the weekend.

Grand Entry

The first to enter the Arena are veterans carrying Eagle Feather Staffs, national, state and tribal and veterans' flags. Visiting dignitaries and royalty are next. Men's traditional dancers enter first behind the dignitaries followed by the remaining dancer categories, moving clockwise around the arena. After all the dancers have entered, then comes a prayer followed by a flag and victory song (you should remain standing until the flags are posted).

Honor Song

An honor song is sung for an individual for a variety of reasons such as graduating from school, serving in the military, or receiving an Indian name. Everyone is invited to come and pay their respects by gently shaking the hands of the family and then joining the line behind them to finish the dance around the arena.

Veterans

Veterans are greatly esteemed in Native cultures as they are recognized as the protectors of the people. They have earned the right to bring in the staffs and flags during Grand Entry for their service to the country. American Indians have the highest enlistment and veterans rates of any other race in the Nation.

POWOW AT-A-GLANCE

Men's Traditional

Men's traditional is one of the oldest styles of dance known across the Great Plains. This dance is focused on the individual, or dancer, telling a story. The story re-enactment could be one of a great hunting party, or perhaps, a war party, where the individual tracked their food or their enemy. Regalia designs are used to honor family, nation, or individuals and are usually handcrafted by the individual dancer or their family members. Breast plates are made of bone or shell to protect against arrows; neck choker to protect against knives; a tomahawk or shield with symbols associated with the tribe. Some wear a bustle made of eagle feathers on their lower backs and carry eagle feather fans; the eagle being a sacred bird within the culture and a connection to the Creator.

Men's Grass Dance

There are differing interpretations of the origin of the grass dance. One is that the dance is to flatten the grass on a new camp or meeting site to bless the area. The grass dancers shake and sway like the grass in the wind while their feet perform intricate dance moves. Grass dance regalia consists of colorful ribbons and fabric that mimics the look of grass. The head dress is known as a roach that is made out of porcupine and horse hair. Spinners are attached to the roach and usually comprised of two feathers or plumes. The dancers do not wear feather bustles like the traditional and fancy dancers.

Men's Fancy

Men's fancy is a contemporary style of dance for energetic young men or older men who are in great shape. A fancy dancer needs stamina and agility for the jumping, twirling and other aerobic rapid movements. The colors are bright and the regalia elaborate. Dancers often have two feather bustles, ribbons and horse hair, along with bright head and arm bands, and sometimes mirrors. A head dress of two eagle feathers is worn. Dancers bob their heads to keep the feathers constantly moving throughout the song. Fancy dancers often carry a decorated coup stick, as ancestors did in times of battle.

Men's Chicken Dance

Several tribal nations have origin stories of the Chicken Dance traditional style of dancing, but all of them include mention of the prairie chicken's springtime mating dance.

The traditional regalia worn by the chicken dancers have not changed much; with regalia that includes a head roach, breech cloth, round bells, and a small feather bustle. The dance is done in mimicking the mating dance of the Prairie Chicken that we see in the prairies.

POWWOW AT-A-GLANCE

Women's Fancy Dance

Women's fancy dance is a contemporary style dance where women usually wear colorful, elaborate regalia with calf-length skirt and a beaded or sequined or decorated shirt. A long fringed shawl is worn over the shoulders and held out at the elbows. Regalia may also include beaded belts, hairpieces, braid wraps, leggings and moccasins. The fast movements of the fancy shawl dancer includes fine footwork and fast spins, meant to mimic a joyful butterfly.

Jingle Dress

The jingle dress dance is characterized by the jingle dress and light footwork danced close to ground. Dance movements include a straight up posture, up and down motion and hopping or rocking with the feet moving in a shuffle. Arms are bent at the elbows, with hands on hips, or carrying a scarf, fan or purse.

The origin of the dance has several versions, but the common story is about a spiritual leader with a vision of how to heal his sick granddaughter. In the vision, he saw the spirit in a dress. The spirit told him that if he made this dress for his granddaughter and if she would dance in it that she would become well, which she did. Jingle dresses are made of fabric in solid bright colors. Each dress adorned with jingles on the sleeves, the top, and rows of jingles on the bottom. The jingles were originally made from chewing tobacco can lids, rolled into cones. Each jingle represents a prayer.

Women's Traditional

The women's traditional dance is rhythmic and graceful, with repetitive movements, and is also known as one of the oldest form of dances for this region. Historically, when the hunters or warriors would return, a runner would be sent ahead to inform the camp of their return. Songs would be sung to welcome them home. The women would dance in line, side by side, along the route to welcome their relatives back to camp. The women move their feet up and down close to the ground, in time with the drum. Many carry a folded shawl draped over one arm and a feather fan. They may also carry a knife case and an awl on their belt. Dresses are in beautiful colors and beading, often made by the dancer, or a close and loving relative.

POWWOW AT-A-GLANCE

Intertribals

Everyone is invited to join the dancers in the arena when an intertribal dance is announced. You need not be in regalia but are asked to be respectful at all times. Walk in time with the beat and watch others around you to see what they do. Always be mindful of others.

Regalia

There are many dance types with categories divided by age and gender. The regalia worn by each dancer is determined by the category in which they compete. Please do not touch any part of the dancer's regalia without permission.

Ceremonies and Traditions

Fallen Warrior Ceremony: If an eagle feather from someone's regalia inadvertently falls to the ground, an Eagle Ceremony is conducted by veterans to retrieve what they consider the Fallen Warrior. Tribal People have the highest respect for the eagle as they believe the eagle flies higher than any other being and carries prayers to the Creator. Possession of an eagle feather is an honor. Please, no photography during this ceremony.

Giveaways

A giveaway demonstrates how generosity is a virtue in tribal culture. The giveaway occurs when an individual or group is to be thanked or achieved a major honor or accomplishment. A master of ceremonies assists the family during the giveaway. Often simple, everyday gifts are given. For example, blankets and special gifts like star quilts may be given to individuals who have helped the family. Visitors often receive gifts and refusal is considered impolite. A giveaway is generally followed by a 'thank you' song and dance, when gift recipients participate in a round dance.

Powwow Etiquette

Please show respect during the Grand Entry and prayers by removing your cap or hat and standing. You may sit if you are elderly or have a medical condition that prevents you from standing. Please refrain from talking during prayer. Listen to the master of ceremonies.

- Clothing worn by participants is known as regalia and not to be called a costume.
- Do not touch the dancers or their regalia.
- Please ask dancers before you take their photo. Be polite by asking permission as some dancers may have spiritual reasons for avoiding photos.
- Photographers are asked not to enter the dance arena to take photos, nor are they allowed to photograph during prayers and ceremonies.
- When a blanket dance is announced, be prepared to donate a few dollars when the blanket passes. The money will be donated to the person or drum group being honored.
- Leave the lawn chairs around the area alone; they're for the dancers. You may bring your own chair; please make room for others.
- Don't be afraid to ask people around you to explain things that you may not understand. People are friendly and will be eager to share their knowledge.
- Shaking hands is an important acknowledgement of another person. This is done gently not forcefully. Native children learn this custom at a young age.
- Because this is a sacred gathering, drugs and alcohol are not tolerated on powwow grounds under any circumstances.

HISTORY OF UNITED TRIBES TECHNICAL COLLEGE

Enter United Tribes Technical College and you're on Indian land. This 200-acre campus along Bismarck's University Drive is owned and governed by the tribal nations of North Dakota. American Indian students are joined by students of all racial and ethnic backgrounds and welcomed into this family learning environment in a place of historical significance.

Tribal Homeland

UTTC is the site of a former military post. But long before the first brick buildings took shape in 1900, this was open prairie. Wooded ravines nearby and fertile bottomlands sustained the Mandan and Hidatsa People. Earth lodge villages, hunting sites and sacred places dotted the landscape of the Missouri River Valley near Apple Creek.

Military Post

Unmistakable on the UTTC campus today are the parade grounds and brick buildings of Fort Lincoln. This was the second Fort Lincoln in the area. Custer and his 7th Cavalry were at the first Fort Lincoln south of Mandan, not here.

Bismarck's Fort Lincoln served on and off through the first half of the 20th Century. Periodically troops were garrisoned, assembled, trained and mobilized here. In 1917, the post was a busy assembly center for North Dakota National Guard troops departing for World War One in Europe.

Bismarck citizens welcomed the post, accepting the troops and officers into the community with civic events and activities, and by lobbying to continue the flow of federal resources into the local economy.

Construction of Bismarck's Fort Lincoln began in 1900

Internment Camp

During World War Two, Fort Lincoln was tapped for another purpose. In 1941 a portion was cordoned off with 10-foot-high cyclone fences topped with barbed wire and fortified by guard towers. The fort became an internment camp operated by the U.S. Justice Department. Locked here were only men; most were citizens of Germany and Japan. However, some prisoners in 1945 were Japanese American U.S. Citizens, who had lawfully protested their confinement in other camps. Their incarceration tied Fort Lincoln to the unjust treatment of select groups targeted by race and ethnicity. In the Japanese American community, Fort Lincoln became known as "Snow Country Prison."

Fort Lincoln Internment Camp era 1941-1946

Post-War Era

After the war, Fort Lincoln continued in government service. It became the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers headquarters for planning Garrison Dam on the Missouri River, a public works project that flooded tribal land, devastating citizens of the Mandan/Hidatsa/Arikara Nation at Fort Berthold.

In 1964, the fort became surplus property and was later remodeled and used as a Job Corps training center, and later by the Peace Corps.

College Bound

The start of United Tribes Technical College was rooted in the vision and activism of tribal leaders in the 1960s. Faced with threats to tribal sovereignty and the need for training and jobs development, the tribes of North Dakota incorporated in 1968, did some lobbying of their own, and obtained the fort for education and training. Classes began in September 1969. Thus, it became the second tribal college in the nation and one of the founding institutions of the nationwide American Indian Higher Education Consortium.

Because several tribes were involved, UTTC holds the distinction of being the first intertribally-controlled and operated postsecondary vocational school in the nation. The governing tribes are located wholly or in part in North Dakota: Mandan/ Hidatsa/Arikara Nation, Spirit Lake Tribe, Sisseton-Wahpeton Oyaté, Standing Rock Sioux Tribe and Turtle Mountain Band of Chippewa Indians.

United Tribes Educational Training Center dedicated Sept. 6, 1969

College Progress

United Tribes was formed as a supportive campus-community, where students could maintain their culture and build on their experience as tribal people, as they acquired an education leading to employment and life-long opportunities. A hallmark has been the ability to identify and respond to the changing needs for jobs training and education. In 1982, the college attained full membership accreditation with the Higher Learning Commission of the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools, maintaining its good standing ever since. The college's first associate degrees were offered in 1987. Accreditation followed for all of the college's associate level programs in 1993. Tribal College Land Grant status was conferred in 1994. UTTC was the first tribal college in the nation to receive accreditation to offer associate degrees online. Bachelor's degree programs now round out the offerings that make UTTC one of the leading tribal colleges in the nation.

Transformation

Today, the UTTC campus features modern educational buildings and equipment. The historic setting is transformed, serving students from tribes all across the country and non-Native students. The college continues to enjoy community support as an economic input, cultural asset, and historic site.

Thousands at UTTC have been successful in this learning environment, demonstrating that education is the highest and best use of a one-time military fort in the tribal homeland.

POWWOW PHOTOGRAPHY and RECORDING GUIDELINES

The United Tribes Technical College (UTTC) International Powwow is a celebratory gathering of tribal people. Seen and heard are many examples and performances of creative genius and cultural expression, ranging from the designs in beading and quillwork to the artistic movements in dance, and the inspiration in song and at the drum. These are the intellectual and creative property of individuals and groups, and the outward expression of customs and knowledge from within the culture. These have often been appropriated without permission or acknowledgment through the use of photography and recordings. In the spirit of respect and understanding, the UTTC Powwow Committee asks you to observe certain protocols when it comes to photography and audio and video recording.

FOX FAMILY FEATURE

Thank you for your continued support of the United Tribes Technical College International Powwow.

Lee Fox Sr.

Sharon Fox Grey

Lee Fox Sr., (Holy Cedar Plume Headdress) WWII Veteran, and his wife Elizabeth Marie (Owl Woman) moved to the United Tribes Employment Training Center (UTETC), now United Tribes Technical College (UTTC), to become part of the first graduating class. Lee was in the Building Maintenance Program and Elizabeth was in Nursing. Lee was an enrolled member of the Mandan Hidatsa Arikara Nation.

Students elected Lee as President of the first UTETC Celebration Committee. His love for singing and grass dancing made this Celebration very important to him. Lee and his classmates gathered donations and sponsorships by fundraising and going door to door in the Bismarck Mandan community. Two of Lee's sons Darrel and Harley Fox held dancing exhibitions around the city for funds. Lee reached out to his relatives and friends at home in MHA Nation for donations. He explained this celebration was to gather the people (Nuxbaaga Girawaciga'ac) together one more time before the snow flies.

Successful fundraising had been done to sponsor the first celebration on campus and a rodeo in Mandan, ND. Proceeds from the rodeo helped cover the costs for the Powwow. Rations were given to campers each day and a buffalo feed was held on Sunday. The tradition of feeding the people was foremost for Lee and the first Celebration Committee. The celebration lasted three days.

"United Tribes had such an impact on our lives. Our parents were part of the first graduating class, I was in Kindergarten and Palmer was in Preschool at the same time our parents were going to school on campus," said Will Fox, the son of Lee and Elizabeth, and a U.S. Marine Corps veteran. Lee's daughter Sharon (Fox) Grey was the first United Tribes Princess. Lee Sr. sang the Flag Song and Lee Fox, Jr., also a veteran, raised the flag during the first celebration.

This year marks the fifth year of generous giving by the Fox Family to support the UTTC International Powwow and to provide student scholarships. This support is a legacy to the Fox family for past and current generations as former UTETC students who remained true to their culture while gaining an education to provide for their families. The UTTC Administration and UTTC International Powwow Committee are grateful and thankful for the continued support to put on a great celebration for the Bismarck Mandan Community and our visitors that results in scholarships for the students we serve!
